The News Chronicle was created on 2 June 1930 when the Daily Chronicle and Daily News merged. It was a Liberal newspaper that supported peace, social reform, free speech, and the League of Nations.

The paper became known for its strong opinions on major issues. It opposed Franco during the Spanish Civil War and later criticised the government's actions during the Suez Crisis in 1956. However, these views affected sales and advertising income.

By 1960, the newspaper was losing money and could not compete with larger papers. On 17 October 1960, the News Chronicle closed and merged with the Daily Mail. Many readers and journalists were disappointed, as it had been respected for its quality reporting and independent views.

Daily News AND THE Daily Chronicle

AN ANNOUNCEMENT.

WE have to announce to the readers of the "Daily Chronicle" and the "Daily News" that these two great Liberal papers have joined forces and will from to-day be combined in a single newspaper.

Under modern conditions newspaper production is a highly organised and costly enterprise which must be carried out on the largest possible scale if popular daily journals are to give their readers the fullest and best news service, deal adequately with politics, commerce, art, literature, drama, sport and other matters of public interest, and also offer to their advertisers a wide publicity.

Indeed, rationalisation is as necessary in journalism as in any other great industry, and though there are fewer national morning newspapers published in London than there were 20 years ago their number even to-day is
